Rode Over Connecticut River.

GREENFIELD, July 14—The cars of the Greenfield & Turners Falls street railway company have crossed the new bridge over the Connecticut river at Montague City today for the first time. The cars have been crowded all day. The bridge has been in course of construction for several months. The building of a temporary trestle at the east end makes the running of cars practicable. The road was opened three weeks ago, since when the passengers have crossed the river over the old highway bridge, on foot.

NewspaperArchive by Storied

Boston Daily Globe, July 15, 1895 Pg. 16, Boston, Massachusetts, US
https://newspaperarchive.com/boston-daily-globe-jul-15-1895-p-16/

Rode Over Connecticut River: Greenfield